Andrea Tyler

Self-motivated, performance-driven, goal-oriented, and well-organized Andrea Tyler is sincerely passionate about her craft: education and training. She does not limit herself to the things she could accomplish, but she rather explores all possible opportunities in order to exceed other people's expectations. In addition to her knowledge and skills, her commendable work ethics and professional attitude make her stand out among her colleagues.

After acquiring her Bachelor of Arts in Sociology degree, she landed a job as a social worker in Torrence, California. Her innate compassion, commitment, and enthusiasm to advance the well-being of children, young people, and families strengthen her role in promoting community development and social cohesion.

Her first job as a social worker provided her with much professional experience. She was also able to develop and hone her skills as she further understood the importance of education, volunteerism, and social work, and helped alleviate some of the problems in the society. She contributed to social change in her own little way by providing guidance and counseling assistance, finding resources for school dropouts, and providing small business projects for women.

Her five fruitful years as a social worker allowed her to play a key role in community growth as she was able to inspire children, women, and families. She was able to motivate them to take part in meaningful activities and gain in-depth understanding of the functions of different social units, groups, associations, and institutions.

Due to her passion and hard work, she was nominated as a finalist in the much-coveted National Association of Social Workers (NASW) award. Out of the 100 participants, she topped the survey that also launched her as Social Worker of the Year in 2011.

Andrea Tyler now works at El Camino College. Her innate passion for learning and understanding for diverse situations helped her initiate, facilitate, and moderate classroom discussions. Her excellence in teaching has inspired many students to engage in activities that have a profound impact on the community.

As a woman of passion and excellence, she always goes out of her way to surpass the expectations of his employers and superiors. She aims for perfection and never stops short of her goals. She continuously seeks out ways on how to improve herself and perform her best. With her outstanding competencies and remarkable professional attitude, she creates and leaves an impact on every company, employer, and colleague she has worked with.

Andrea Tyler is undoubtedly fit for any job positions in the field of education and training. Equipped with much experience, skills, and knowledge in these industries, she could greatly contribute in achieving business success. Indeed, she is a valuable asset to every company that seeks successful attainment of their mission and goals.
